Dear Mom and Dad, Mon. [1971 May estimate]

Zoom I'm off.

I just toss your letters in my desk drawer, Mom. I Don't like to throw them away. I save lots of things. Especially things that I just might possibly be sentimental about.

Love,

Mike

It's like putting them out of my way but without polluting "everybody's environment."

Yes, I'm back to normal. Well, I'm in shape again. I've come to the conclusion that the food ain't so bad It's just that one can eat too much of it. One sometimes thinks that he has to make every meal. And there are so many choices. (One has to be selective).

I can say the food is better now or actually that my selection process is meeting my needs more correctly.

Woke up a 9:15 this morning. Had to run to get to 9:00 stat. class. The Notes were all on the board. I did quite a bit of studying in stat this weekend too. At least 7 hrs (straight) in library yesterday.

It's warm today and not raining.

I'll have to eat lunch and get to studying now. I have Bio Lab Quiz today (I studied already this weekend for it so I don't have much left to look over). And I have an English paper due tom.eoe, I've started it but I'll be working most of today and tomorrow on it to get it finished. Like I said I spent so much time on stat and lab this weekend couldn't find time to get around to English
