Dear Mom and Dad,

Wed 13th after test

Got your letter and thank you for wishing me luck, both of you! I got out of the test about 10-15 mins early before any one else I think. I hope thats a good sign. I looked over my test before I handed it in. I think I did well. Thanks (again) for pulling for me.

I got my psychology test back today. I was one point away from an A. The professor gave us 5 essay questions today to take home since he had repeated some of the questions on the exam. Giving us these 5 questions doesn't make any sense to me since he has already given us a grade on the test. and the grade he will give us on the 5 ques. he says won't have any effect on the test grade.

Graduation will be Sunday May 5 for sure.

There has been a good bit of streaking here since Monday. Four guys streaked at lunch time yesterday. (I saw) One streaked last night through the cafeteria during supper (I heard from reliable-many-sources). Some guys and then some girls late last night (I heard). Those are all I know of but, I'm sure there must have been others. The subject of streaking is a part of just about every conversation. Its getting ridiculous. These streakers could at least wait till it got a little warmer.

I went to an exit interview required for those having NDSL (loans) Monday and was told how the loan was to be paid back.

May God bless you both for being wonderful parents.

Love,

Mike
